

Product Review: No-VOC Mythic Paint...Is a $50 gallon of paint worth it?

Posted on September 15, 2011 | Leave a comment

We recently moved and we wanted to paint our 7 year old daughter's room.

For the past five years she had a very small, very dark room. This worked great during the years she was still napping but in the new place, her room is bigger and we really wanted to make it a nice place for her to be, whether she was sleeping, doing homework, playing with friends, or changing her clothes for the 50th time. She was super excited to pick out a color and make this room her own.

I have known for years how important it is to reduce the toxins in your home as much as possible. So anytime we paint, we try to get as non-toxic of a paint as possible. When I heard about Mythic Paint being a no-VOC (volatile organic compound), I wanted to get it, knowing this would be the best for our daughter and our entire home. If you can reduce the amount of toxins in your home as much as possible, everyone's health benefits. On the Mythic Paint website, they answer some frequently asked questions about why you might want to consider a no-VOC paint. Check out their answers here.

We went to Living Spaces, in Acton, MA to buy our paint. They specialize in 'green' building/decorating/etc. She picked out her color and off we went with our $50 gallon of paint. $50?!?! That's right. We paid $50 for a gallon of paint. But I say it is 100% worth it. My husband painted the room and he said it went on great and we only needed one coat to cover the off-white that was already on the walls. We are renting an apartment and are not sure how long we are going to live there so we were not worried about it being perfect, we just wanted her to be happy with the color of her room. But he was very pleasantly surprised at the quality of the paint and how easily it went on and the fact that we didn't really need a second coat. And we feel great about the non-toxic aspect. It is peace of mind knowing that when she sleeps, she is not breathing in nasty chemicals that have the potential (short and long term) of making her sick.

To find a Mythic Paint dealer in your area, go here. I highly recommend them!

What are your experiences using non-toxic products in your home? Do you feel it is worth the (sometimes) extra cost?

Tell us in the comments below.

Thanks!

Adrienne

Be sure to join Healthy Adventures on Facebook and on Twitter too! Much appreciated!! xo

Posted in Uncategorized

Tagged decorating, living spaces acton, low VOC paint, mythic paint, no-VOC paint, non-toxic home, paint

→ Leave a comment