Fairfield County interior designer Olga Adler has been named to a national panel of leading designers who are serving as "Color Experts" for Mythic paint, the leading non-toxic paint serving consumers and the design trade.

Adler is one of six designers across the country invited to share insights about color with Mythic, including participating in demonstration "green" design projects to promote the use of non-toxic paints that achieve high-end decorating results.

"I was delighted to be selected," Adler said. "I am very familiar with Mythic paint and use it often for client projects. I first tried Mythic about three years ago when I was working on a nursery design. The client's baby was coming home any day and we were in a hurry. It was winter, and we simply did not have enough time to properly air out the room. Mythic's paint looked beautiful; it dried quickly with none of the toxicity or odor of other types of paint. I was sold on it, then and there."

Non-toxic paint fits well with Adler's pro-environment philosophy. Olga Adler Interiors offers "green" materials to clients on a routine basis. "Many people assume that homeowners need to choose between healthful materials and attractive finishings, and that's simply not true: you can enjoy a home that is free of dangerous toxins and is also alive with lustrous colors and luxurious textures." Adler's design team includes an employee who has been "certified green" by the Sustainable Furnishings Council.

Mythic paint, manufactured by Southern Diversified Products, was developed in cooperation with the University of Southern Mississippi. Its non-toxic, high-performance paint is available in virtually any color and sheen for interior and exterior use. Mythic is available at paint stores nationwide.
